WORLD EXCLUSIVE LIAR BRIAN WILLIAMS IS SUICIDAL!

- PALS FEAR

DISGRACED newsman Brian Williams suffered a shocking breakdown after he was caught lying and booted off the air - now worried friends fear he's suicidal.

"Brian never saw this coming," says a source close to the fallen star. "When the full force of the scandal hit him, I'm told he suffered a secret emotional breakdown. He was in a daze, couldn't eat or sleep and even said he thought he was going crazy."

"He's a man with a huge ego and the humiliation, shame and being the brunt of jokes is devastating to him. Colleagues say he sounds deeply depressed and fear he is suicidal," said the source.

The 55-year-old NBC Nightly News anchor was suspended for six months without pay for lying on air about his exploits in war-torn Iraq. He'll lose $5 million in salary, but insiders say that's the least of it.

"His legacy and life as a newsman is in ruins. He's a laughingstock," a friend tells GLOBE. "He's become a shell of his former self, and you really fear this scandal is going to destroy him."

Incredibly, this furor may only be the tip of the iceberg. "Brian's detractors are now examining his words throughout his career to see what else he may have embellished or lied about," says the friend. "The worst could be yet to come."

One expert tells GLOBE fears for Williams' life are not overstated.

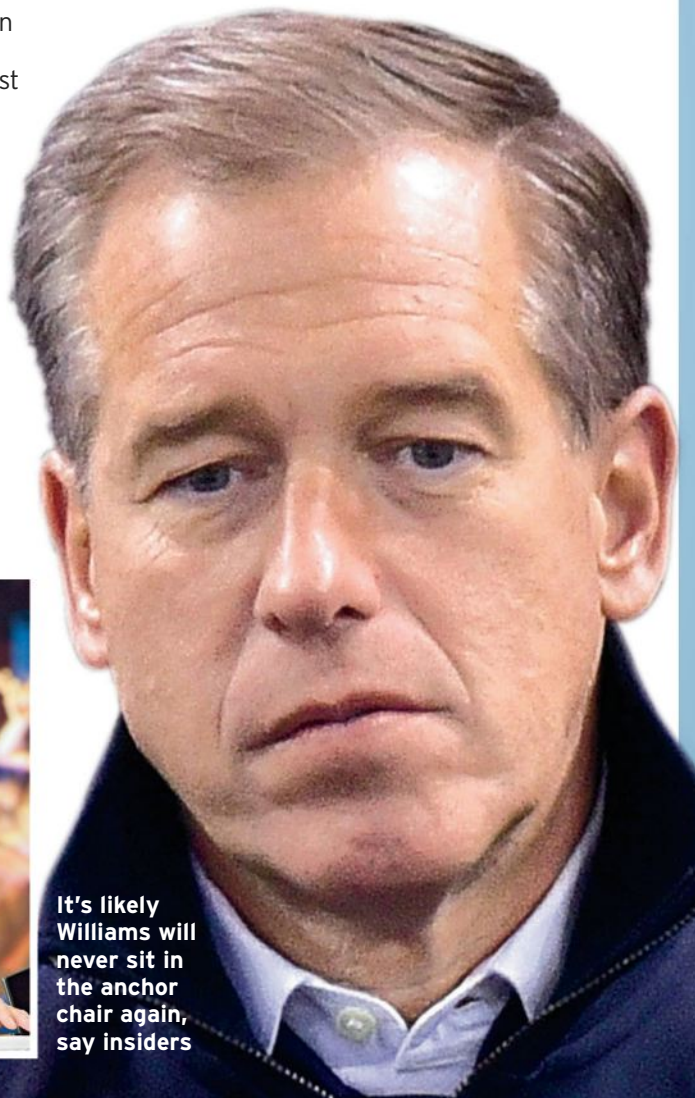

"Brian Williams has faced a career tsunami and he is drowning under the waves of humiliation, embarrassment and disgrace," notes Florida-based psychologist Dr. Terry Lyles. "His life, as he knows it, is over. His whole identity has been attached to his

FIFTY SHADES OF GREY GAMES CAN KILL YOU!

COUPLES trying Fifty Shades of Grey S&M sexploits in their own bedrooms risk winding up black and blue – or worse!

A GLOBE investigation has uncovered accidents, assaults and even murders associated with the controversial erotica depicted in the best-selling trilogy of books that inspired the naughty film.

And experts are warning fans of the blockbuster movie not to get too carried away in attempts to replicate the kinky antics they see on the big screen between characters Anastasia Steele, a college graduate, and domineering business magnate Christian Grey.

Agonizing

“What happens in the movie is all about someone’s imagination – it might not be possible physically, especially for older people who are not as flexible,” top behavioral analyst Dr. Lillian Glass tells GLOBE. “Trying to copy what you see in the movie is likely a recipe for problems, even disaster.”

The concern was underlined by an agonizing whiplash neck injury that 25-year-old actress Dakota Johnson, who plays Anastasia, suffered at the hands of Grey, portrayed by Irish actor Jamie Dornan, 32.

“There were some painful moments,” Dakota confesses. “I got whiplash once, from him throwing me onto the bed. But that was only because we did it over and over and over again.”

Brittany Killgore was allegedly killed by Louis Perez (right), after she refused to have S&M sex with him more than 100 million copies – has revealed a series of disturbing incidents, including real-life Fifty Shades of Grey murders.

San Diego beauty Brittany Killgore, 22, was allegedly killed because she resisted suspect Louis Perez’s attempt to force her into S&M sex. Perez, a 46-year-old Marine staff sergeant, who was said to call himself “Lord and Master, Dom and Daddy,” is slated to go on trial in June.

In another case, a 31-year-old man was accused of murdering his exchange student girlfriend after she was hit 123 times with a wooden blackboard pointer while bound with nylon ties.

And Portland, Ore. based tech entrepreneur Scott Kveton, founder of Urban Airship mobile software, quit his company after a former girlfriend claimed he sexually assaulted her during a relationship that both said had echoes of Fifty Shades of Grey. He was not charged with any crime.

There’s also been a dramatic rise in emergency calls to free people handcuffed to their beds!

“I don’t know whether it’s the ‘Fifty Shades’ effect, but the number of incidents involving items like handcuffs seems to have gone up,” says firefighter Dave Brown. “I’m sure most people are 50 shades of red by the time our crews arrive to free them.”

Dr. Glass also warns about the emotional impact the books and movie could have on women.

“One of the things I’m worried about are the psychological problems this movie could cause,” she says. “There is a lot of very abusive sex and it doesn’t speak highly of women. S&M is not what sex is all about.

“There are people who are going to be hurt. It could be embarrassing and psychologically humiliating. The dangers are very real. It is very distressing.”

image as a credible journalist - now that's gone.

"Like all mourners, he'll go through a grieving process, from shock and denial to anger and then depression. In any of these stages, he can definitely have suicidal thoughts."

Williams has long enjoyed his fame as the face of NBC's top-rated evening news, as a gung-ho reporter in the field and as a sought-after guest on talk shows. Colleagues say he changed as his fame grew.

"He thought of himself as God," says a source. "He was seen in millions of homes nightly and recognized everywhere he went."

Crashing down

The ambitious anchor even lobbied NBC execs a few years ago to replace Jay Leno as host of The Tonight Show. But his desire to entertain people may have been his downfall, as he embellished stories about his own experiences to make them more riveting.

It all came crashing down after he claimed on the Jan. 30 news telecast that a helicopter he rode in during the Iraq War was "hit and crippled by enemy fire." It was the same tale he'd told on Late Show with David Letterman in 2013.

But military men who were on the scene blasted Williams' account. Although one chopper in the caravan of four was fired upon, Williams' aircraft wasn't hit and landed safely. "He's stealing valor from those who have actually seen combat," fumes former Army Ranger Kris Paronto.

After the military periodical Stars and Stripes laid bare the actual events, Williams confessed to making a mistake. "I don't know what screwed up in my mind that caused me to conflate one aircraft with another," he admitted.

Then the floodgates opened. Williams came under scrutiny for his 2005 award-winning Hurricane Katrina reporting in New Orleans. He'd said the Ritz-Carlton hotel where he stayed was overrun by marauding gangs, that he saw a corpse floating by from his hotel window in the French Quarter and that he had contracted dysentery.

Those claims were all disputed by the hotel's former general manager, Myra DeGersdorff. Others noted the French Quarter was barely flooded.

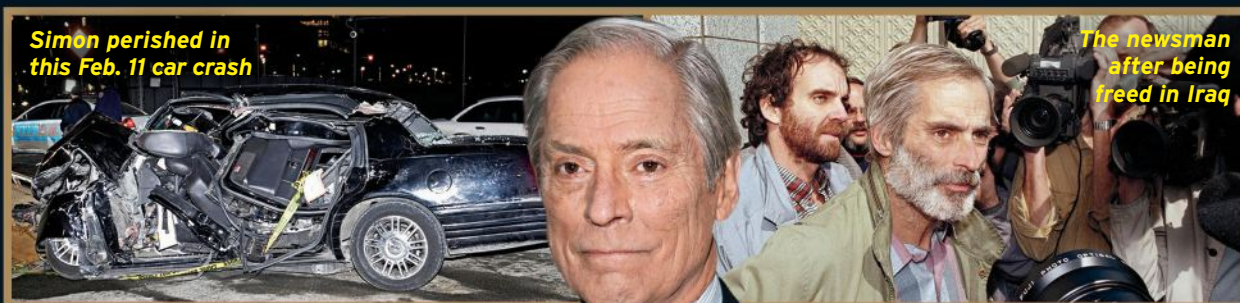

Meanwhile, more tales Williams has told for years

REAL TV WAR HERO DIES IN FREAK CRASH

AFTER a spectacular 47-year career where he put his life on the line in war zones and was captured and tortured by dictator Saddam Hussein's Iraqi army, veteran CBS newsman Bob Simon died near his home - in a freak car crash.

The 60 Minutes correspondent, whose last project was a report on Ebola, was riding with his TV producer daughter, Tanya Simon, Feb. 11 when his chauffeured Lincoln Town Car smashed into a Mercedes stopped at a red light. The Town Car then hit steel barriers, leaving the black limo a twisted hunk of metal.

Unresponsive, Simon was rushed to New York's Saint Luke's Roosevelt

Traveling to hot spots in 67 different have also been challenged, including another harrowing chopper ride during the Israel-Hezbollah war in 2006. People are even questioning his yarn about being robbed at gunpoint while selling Christmas trees as a young man.

"Brian's not a liar by trade, but he loves being a star," says a source. "I think, in some ways, he let the fame go to his head. He always wants to tell a good story, but some of them might have turned into tall tales."

Crisis point

Now, there are grave doubts he'll ever be back on Nightly News. The senior executive producer of NBC's investigative unit, Richard Esposito, is probing Williams' shifting stories about Iraq and other disputed reports.

"This is a very real crisis point for Brian," says a friend. "He's inconsolable. If his worst fears come true and he is destroyed by this, we're afraid he'll feel he has nothing to live for."

"It's like his whole life's work has been thrown onto a bonfire, and I don't know if someone as proud as Brian can recover from that. We fear the shame will push him over the edge."

pied Kuwait when Iraqi soldiers raced up in a jeep and captured them.

They were missing for a week before an Iraqi deserter revealed they were prisoners. CBS lobbied other news organizations not to report Simon was Jewish, fearing he'd be executed. A Red Cross card Simon carried falsely listed him as a Protestant Christian - which may have saved his life.

Still, Simon was interrogated, beaten, starved, threatened with death and kept in a dark cell during 40 days of hellish captivity. He later told how an Iraqi captain slapped him, forced his jaws open and then spit into his mouth, calling him a Jew. "I would have killed him if I could" with "no more remorse than killing a cockroach," admitted Simon, who wrote about how the ordeal changed his life in his 1992 book Forty Days.

But he also faced danger covering the Vietnam War and was brutally beaten by a Protestant mob in Belfast. He has reported from every Middle Eastern country and did a story on the terrorist group Hezbollah.

Colleagues quickly tweeted their reactions. "Bob was the best writer working in broadcast news," says CNN's Anderson Cooper. "Heartbroken" former CBS anchor Katie Couric says, "Bob was a brilliant writer and reporter and someone I admired deeply." And NBC's Today host Matt Lauer says, "Bob was an extraordinary journalist and story teller. He made us care about the world around us. Such a huge loss!"

FAKER WILLIAMS SNUBBED MEDAL OF HONOR WINNERS!

BRIAN WILLIAMS' fall from grace isn't likely to evoke any sympathy from the brave military veterans he snubbed in 2006.

Six months before a Congressional Medal of Honor banquet in Boston, the now-embattled newsman promised to serve as master of ceremonies and keynote speaker at the bash, says Neal Santangelo, who'd helped organize the event.

But at the last minute, Williams claimed a "pressing engagement" would keep him from doing anything more than greeting the audience. Although disappointed, the organizers still arranged for a police escort to whisk Williams to the airport for his flight back to New York.

Later on, Santangelo says he discovered the "pressing engagement" was an appearance on Saturday Night Live, where Williams joked around with Seth Meyers and Amy Poehler in a Weekend Update sketch.

Santangelo told the Boston Herald he wrote a letter to Williams, stating, "In an act of egotistical, blatant self-promotion, you deceived the (Medal of Honor) recipients, declined to break bread with them and disrespected them. You placed comedy before courage. Your conduct was irreverent, insulting, incomprehensible and shameful."

After consulting National Medal of Honor Society members, Santangelo decided not to send the note.

But Williams' lust for the limelight eventually led to his downfall. New York Times columnist Maureen Dowd recently wrote, "Williams has spent years fervently 'courting celebrity'...guest-starring on 30 Rock, slow-jamming the news with Jimmy Fallon and regaling David Letterman with his faux heroics."

FEB. 9, 2015

OOH my, Uma, what's up with your face?

When 44-year-old Uma Thurman stepped out at the premiere party for NBC's new miniseries The Slap, she turned heads for all the wrong reasons!

The once-natural beauty looked strange and artificial, sparking speculation she'd undergone cosmetic procedures that had made her "decidedly different."

One eyewitness says, "She struggled to give anything more than a tight smile."

Dr. Anthony Youn, a plastic surgeon from Troy, Mich., suspects "her new appearance is due to a combination of surgery and makeup."

"Her upper eyelids look more open and tighter, a possible sign of an eyelid-lift. Her lower eyelids now blend in with her upper cheek and may be a sign of fat injections combined with makeup. Her cheeks also look a bit lifted.

"Her forehead is exceedingly smooth, which may be due to injections of a muscle relaxer like Dysport."

Adds Dr. Lyle Back, a Philadelphia-area based cosmetic surgeon, "Uh-oh! Uma should kill Bill – if he's the one who convinced her to go to the same guy that did Kenny Roger's eyes."

"I wonder if they can even close! Her nose looks to be reshaped, and although not a bad job here, in combination with the eyes, she doesn't look like Uma anymore."

In her new miniseries, Thurman plays Anouk, an aging TV writer trying to recapture her youth by dating a younger man.

But despite the mother of three's racy role, it was her appearance that kept everyone talking after the party for The Slap.

Says Dr. Steve Fallek, a New Jersey-based expert, "This is very disappointing. She didn't need anything done!"

OZZY'S BATS!

OZZY OSBOURNE has been invaded by bats! The Black Sabbath singer, who famously bit the head off a live bat during a show in 1982, is convinced the critters are getting revenge for his animal cruelty. The flying mammals have taken over a barn at the English mansion he shares with wife SHARON OSBOURNE. And he can't just kill them because they are a protected species. Now Ozzy, who wants to renovate the building, has been forced to shell out $30,000 to make sure the bats are safely rehoused.

EASY STREET

TERESA GIUDICE's life behind bars sounds pretty cushy. The Real Housewives of New Jersey star was sentenced to 15 months for failing to pay taxes totaling $200,000. According to insiders at Danbury federal prison in Connecticut, she's been honing her cooking skills in the kitchen...and watching episodes of Scandal and Empire with fellow inmates. And even though she's been getting dozens of letters from fans, she hasn't been replying to them. "She says she doesn't have time," dishes the source.

CRUISE CRAZY ABOUT GAY SAM!

TOM CRUISE is a huge fan of openly gay singer SAM SMITH, who won big at this year's Grammy Awards. And he's invited the British hitmaker to have dinner with him in London, where Tom has been shooting the latest Mission: Impossible flick with JEREMY RENNER. Cruise, 52, is said to be crazy about Sam's hit Stay With Me. "He can't get it out of his head," reveals a pal. And he was thrilled when Sam scooped up four Grammys. "He's heard some of his other songs, too, and thinks he's amazing," says the insider. "Tom says Sam is very charismatic and has a presence that will translate well to the big screen. He would love to take him under his wing and turn him into a Hollywood star." Already Tom, who has been single since wife KATIE HOLMES dumped him in 2012, has reached out to Sam and offered to help launch the 22-year-old's Tinseltown career. Sam recently split from his lover of two years, New York-based model and dancer JONATHAN ZEIZEL. And he's said to be "very receptive" to the idea of Tom mentoring him. "Sam did acting as a kid," says the source. "He would do anything to get into movies."

MICK'S GOT FIZZ

It's a tough job being MICK JAGGER, but someone's got to do it! At age 71, he's still a babe magnet and, even though he's worth $328 million, he gets tons of free stuff, too! The legendary Rolling Stones frontman was dining with pals at Beautique in New York the other night, when another customer sent his table a magnum of vintage Perrier-Jouët champagne, which cost $3,500. A grateful Mick responded by standing up and waving a thank you across the dining room. I guess that's what you call getting Satisfaction.

FLIRTY MURRAY

Looks like BILL MURRAY might be trying to end his single status. I hear the twice-divorced funnyman, 64, was turning on the charm with screen legend CATHERINE DENEUE at the Sunset Tower Hotel in Los Angeles. "Catherine was dining with a pal and Bill kept going over to flirt with her," dishes a spywit. Since the French actress is 71, would the Ghostbusters star be a toyboy?

MATCHMAKER GEORGE

Sea Of Love star ELLEN BARKIN has found true romance again...thanks to GEORGE CLOONEY. The 60-year-old blonde has fallen for high-flying lawyer BEN EMMERSON, 51, who she met at Clooney's wedding to AMAL ALAMUDDIN last September. "They totally hit it off. She's so happy," says a source. It turns out that Ben is a longtime friend of Amal. Nashville star CONNIE BRITTON says she has no intention of going under the knife. And at age 47, she has found an easy way to avoid worrying about her looks. "I don't look in the mirror a lot," she reveals. The former Friday Night Lights actress says she stopped worrying about her appearance after adopting her 4-year-old son YOBY from Ethiopia in 2011. "Once I became a mother, I went for two years straight when I didn't look in the mirror at all." Besides, she explains: "I never thought my career...was based around my looks."

FAT'S ALL FOLKS

Pulp Fiction star SAMUEL L. JACKSON has been looking slim lately after dropping 40 pounds on a vegan diet. But now he's going to start chowing down on meat and dairy products again...because he needs to fatten up for his new role. Samuel, 66, is trying to gain back half the weight he lost so that he physically resembles famed historian GEORGE WASHINGTON WILLIAMS in the upcoming movie Tarzan. "They threatened to fire me," explains Sam. "So I decided to go eat."

HORNDOG HAWKING

Wheelchair-bound STEPHEN HAWKING isn't going to let his disabilities stop him from chasing the ladies. The 73-year-old scientist took a shine to FELICITY JONES, 31, who plays his first wife, JANE WILDE, in hit flick The Theory of Everything. The brunette actress admits she was stunned when Hawking invited her to a nightclub with him after a special screening of the movie. He wanted to "go out and party," she said. "He has a real rockstar energy." You gotta admire his style!

Marc Summers

DOUBLE DARE HOST'S CANCER HELL

TV's Marc Summers is finally baring a shocking secret he hid for five years to protect his career - a desperate battle against deadly chronic lymphocytic leukemia!

Summers, who hosted Nickelodeon's messy kid game show Double Dare in the '80s and '90s, underwent two years of chemotherapy after being diagnosed with the blood cancer in 2010. He calls his grueling ordeal "hell."

But the TV frontman kept his leukemia hush-hush because he feared it could make him unemployable.

"I've sort of compressed this thing and it's made me nuts," explains the host of the Food Network's longest running series, Unwrapped. "I'm not covering up anymore - I've had it. I'm in remission and I'm ready to move on."

The 63-year-old married father of two says his image was damaged because he suffers from Obsessive Compulsive Disorder (OCD). He was hired to host Hollywood Squares, but was replaced by Tom Bergeron "before we even got started," Summers recalls. "My reputation was that I was difficult to work with because of the OCD."

The legendary entertainer had a reputation as a ladies man

RAT PACKER Sammy Davis Jr.'s adopted son Mark is really the song and dance man's secret biological son!

That's the amazing story of Mark Davis, now 55, who has just discovered the man he viewed as his adoptive father was actually his own flesh and blood.

But Mark, who was told he first came into Davis' life as a 2-year-old, is baffled by the superstar's deception. His birth certificate, only unearthed in 2013, lists Davis as his father and the actor's then-wife May Britt as his mom.

But Swedish-born actress Britt denies being Mark's birth mother - and he says she refuses to say if she knows the name of his real mom.

"I am a huge living question mark because I have never understood anything 100 percent about where I came from," says Mark, who works at a Los Angeles area

Costco and has two sons of his own.

"If I am dad's natural son, and I believe very much that could be the case, then there could have been many reasons why I was put down as adopted," says Mark.

"Maybe it was the whole show-biz thing and the scandal it might cause or the color thing or even that my natural mother's identity had to remain a secret.

"Dad was very loving when I was a kid, but being adopted never made sense to me as dad and mom had a daughter, Tracey, who is a year younger than me. Why would they adopt an older child after having Tracey?"

At the same time, Mark concedes there are no photographs of him before the age of 2.

"I don't know anything about those two years," he says. "Nobody can tell me anything. Was I brought in by dad from hiding after that because the heat had died down?"

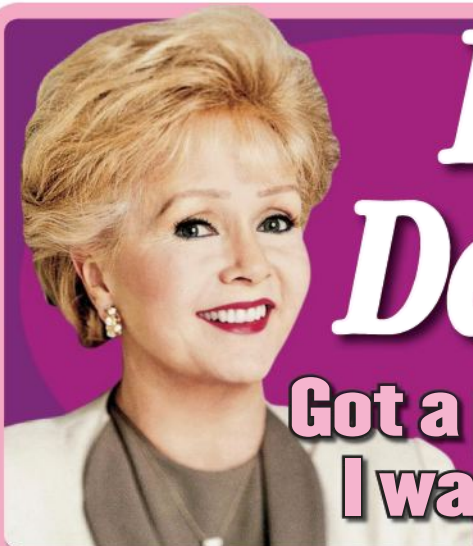

Sammy and May split in 1968 over his cheating. She moved to Lake Tahoe, Calif., making Mark's relationship with his father more distant. They saw each other occasionally until Davis was dying of throat cancer in 1988 in L.A.

"The throat cancer was eating him up," Mark recalls in an exclusive report by the DailyMail.com. "I had arrived from Lake Tahoe, which was about eight hours away.

"He called me to his bed, and I will never forget what he said as he pulled me close.

"'You are my son,' were his last words to me."

DEBBIE REYNOLDS GIVES ADVICE FROM THE HEART

Relatives' visit is disrupting my business plans

Q: My husband and I are trying to start a business and have the opportunity to attend a seminar I feel will be important to our company's growth. Unfortunately, it conflicts with a visit from his relatives. I told him I'd go alone, but he thinks I should stay home while the relatives are here. There will be seminars in the future, but I'm tired of him dragging his feet with this business (even though he's still working a full-time job). Should I go or stay home with the relatives, who I really do adore?

- M.V., OSHKOSH, WIS.

A: Stay home and adore your folks. Keep doing the ground-work on your business so you can develop an excellent plan for this new stage in your lives. Attend the next seminar with your husband. Be sure that all your ducks are in a row before you launch your dream.

Rape ordeal could cost me my job

Q: Six months ago I was jumped by two men who raped me. Despite seeing a therapist, I'm still traumatized, and it's affecting my work at

A few words for...Valerie Harper

WHERE there's life, there's hope. When TV's beloved Rhoda, Valerie Harper, was given just three months to live after being diagnosed with terminal brain cancer, she decided to make the most of her life. It's now been more than two years and Valerie is still going strong. In addition to conventional medical treatments, she also talks to her cancer cells, warning them to stop growing or they'll "kill the host." Sometimes attitude is more powerful than any medicine. We all go through difficult times when there doesn't seem to be any hope, but Valerie shows us that anything is possible with faith and courage. She even chose to be a contestant on Dancing with the Stars. She's not giving up despite having a disease that usually moves rapidly. As I said when I played Molly Brown, "I ain't down yet!" Bravo, Valerie. You're a wonderful example to everyone, and we all pray for your continued strength.

a law firm. I haven't told anyone at work about it, because it's male dominated and they're not overly sensitive. In fact, my boss is the worst of the bunch, especially in his attitude toward women. I'm afraid my poor performance will cost me my job, but I can't bring myself to talk to my boss. Please help me. I can't afford to lose my job.

- L.P., READING, PA.

A: Talk to your human resources department. You've suffered a horrible tragedy. A good support group may help you handle your emotional damage. It may be necessary to take some time off to heal and become stronger. Let your personnel people have the information, which they will keep confidential.

How do you cope when troubles pile up?

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Q: I know you have experienced a lot of ups and downs in your life, so maybe you can help me out. In the past year, my mother died unexpectedly, I lost my job, my husband filed for divorce and I was in a car accident that was my fault due to my many worries and distractions. Meanwhile, my estranged husband moved to Panama to be with his new lover, who is from a very wealthy family down there. Now, I'm months behind on the mortgage. Sometimes I wonder if I have the strength to go on. If it weren't for my two precious kids, I don't know what I would do. I also worry so much about how all of my problems are affecting them. Please tell me what inspires you to get through tough times like this.

- H.M., DALY CITY, CALIF.

A: Faith and family get me through everything. Your children are worth all your efforts. Take your problems one at a time while asking the good Lord for the strength to persevere.

The kids will see how hard their mother has worked to make everything right in their lives.

I've fallen in lust with my roommate

Q: I'm a single, 35-year-old woman and have always considered myself to be heterosexual. However, I now have a female roommate who's in her late 20s, and I find myself almost irresistibly attracted to her. She is very much a free spirit, who often walks around our apartment in her underwear or less. I'm not sure if she's trying to send me a message or is just an exhibitionist. I think I'd like to have a fling with her, but I'm afraid it may offend her or otherwise ruin our relationship. I'm also not sure I want to make this leap to the "other side," so to speak. On the other hand, I find myself fantasizing about her often. I'm so confused. What should I do?

- K.S., WEST ADAMS, COLO.

A: Look before you leap. If your roomie is sending a message, it's not very clear. Try having a conversation with her about the type of people she likes to date. She may just feel comfortable enough with you to walk around half-naked, so don't read into it. You need to discover what she has awakened in you, but this particular woman may not be the answer.

'DUMBO' CHARLES NEEDS AN EAR TUCK!

Camilla orders 'ridiculous-looking' hubby to see plastic surgeon

PUSHY Camilla has ordered Prince Charles to swallow his pride and get rid of his most prized possessions – his enormous Dumbo ears!

Royal sources say the 66-year-old Prince is actually proud of his stick-out ears, treating them as his trademark and "God's Gift."

But Camilla, 67, insists that while there's still a chance of grabbing the Throne, her hen-pecked husband must get rid of his jumbo jugs.

"She's told him he'll look ridiculous wearing the crown with his ears sticking out," says an insider.

"Camilla is convinced that one day she'll sit on the Throne at his side and she's warned him he must do something about his ears before he inherits the crown."

With their sham marriage – 10 years in April – destined to hit the rocks unless she becomes Queen, Camilla even persuaded him to consult a private medical specialist in London's famed Harley Street.

Sources say Charles made at least four secret visits – making the short trip from his residence, Clarence House, in an old black sedan driven by a confidante, who is also a palace courtier.

GLOBE's well-placed source reveals, "He's so secretive about the whole affair. The journey is only a couple of miles or so but Charles treats the trip like a clandestine operation from a James Bond movie."

"He leaves his home with a

Bossy Camilla is riding Charles hard about fixing his jumbo jugs

The Prince of Wales' ears have grown over the years, but even as a schoolboy at the tough Scottish school Gordonstoun, he was dubbed Dumbo tweed cap pulled down to his eyes and won't get into the car until his driver has checked that the road outside is absolutely clear of prying eyes.

"As soon as he reaches the Harley Street clinic, his driver gets out first to give the all-clear. Only then does Charles slip into the doctor's office."

But despite Camilla's digs that he'll look ridiculous wearing the crown, Charles has gotten used to being taunted about his ears, says the source.

At the tough Scottish school, Gordonstoun, he attended from age 13, he was bullied by other pupils who called him, "Big Ears" and "Dumbo."

Still, seeing there was no letting up from his shrewish wife, the heir apparent agreed to consult doctors.

The Prince looks silly with the crown perched on his ears (left), but after an op it would be a better fit

According to GLOBE's insider, Charles hasn't forgotten the late comedienne, Joan Rivers, telling him over dinner at his country estate, Highgrove, "You'd look like a Hollywood movie star if your ears were pinned back!"

"Maybe his vanity did as much to persuade him as Camilla's badgering," says the source.

The surgical procedure, called otoplasty, could easily cost $10,000 or more, says a source.

The surgery takes about three hours, and the patient has to wear heavily padded cotton bandages to cover the scalp for several days. Full recovery can take six weeks.

The surgeon begins by making an incision just behind the ear in the natural fold and removing the necessary amount of cartilage. Sutures are applied to anchor the ear until healing occurs.

"Charles has been delaying the surgery by telling Camilla he'll have to clear his schedule for weeks," says the insider.

"But she told him he should come down with a 'back problem' like she did over the Christmas holidays when she missed the Royal Family's traditional gathering.

"Of course, there was nothing really wrong with her back – she was boozing up a storm with her cronies!"

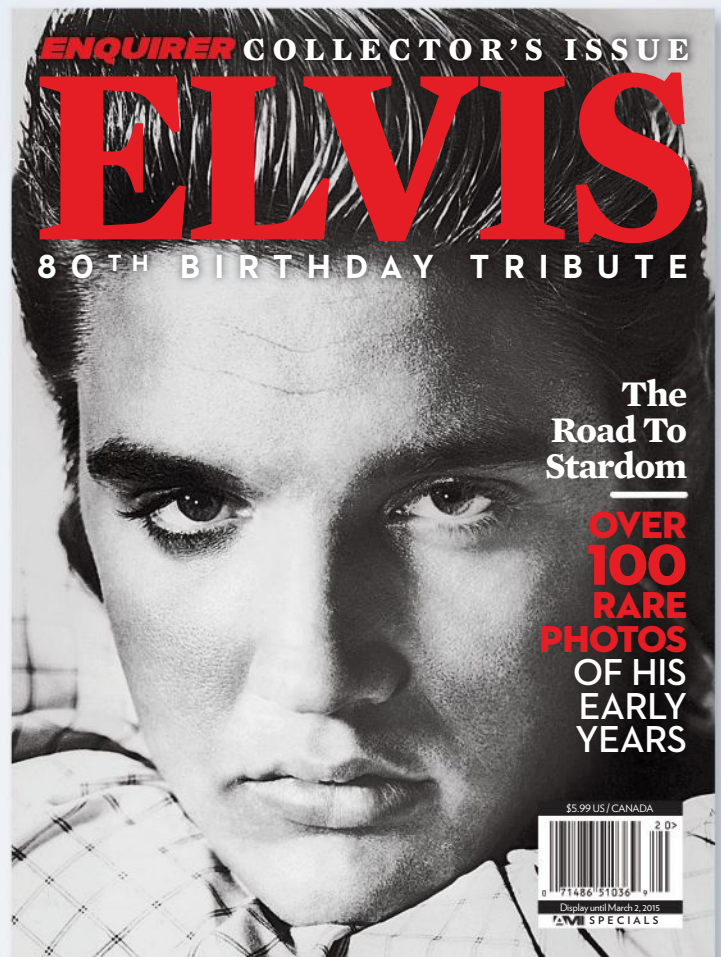

Meanwhile, even though ailing 88-year-old Queen Elizabeth wants Prince William and his beautiful pregnant wife, Kate, 33, to succeed her ahead of Charles, Camilla refuses to concede defeat.

"She's desperately clinging to her lifelong dream of being Queen of England," says the source.

"But that means that Charles' protruding ears have to go!"

The Neptune® Bath Lift is the affordable way to regain your independence and safely stay in the home you love!

Now you can safely enter and exit your tub!

For many of us, nothing is more relaxing than a long, luxurious bath. Unfortunately, because of safety concerns, many people, particularly older people, have to forego this simple pleasure. Sure, you can spend big bucks to remodel your bathroom to provide a bathtub you can use, but who wants to do that? Now there's a better way, and it lets you use the bath that's in your home today.

If you or a loved one has given up bathing because of age, mobility or safety concerns, the Neptune® Upright Bath Lift is the answer. It is so simple, you'll wonder why no one thought of it earlier. The battery-operated "chair" safely and steadily lowers you to the bottom of the tub, and when you're done bathing, it gently raises you back to the top of the tub, assuring a comfortable and safe exit from the tub. The remote is fully waterproof, so your bath won't be a "shocking" experience.

The New Neptune® Upright Bath Lift was redesigned making it lighter, more affordable, with more room to bathe—also making it easier to move the lift in and out of the tub. The bath lift features an easy-to-use hand control designed for comfort and safety. If there's not enough power stored for a full lower/raise cycle, it will not operate. The bath lift also features a wide seat and high backrest for maximum comfort and support.

'THE FACE O

A FUGITIVE father and his accomplice son ruthlessly murdered a retired fire chief, his wife and their two dogs, then torched their victims' house before blasting two lawmen during a shootout, say cops.

The suspects, Edward Campbell, 54, and Eric Campbell, 21, were captured after the gunfight, the cops add. They are now being held without bail on murder and other charges.

"These two individuals represent the face of evil and had no regard for human life," declares Lewisburg, W.Va., police chief Tim Stover.

Following the deadly home invasion, cops say the Campbells threw the bodies of Jerome Faulkner, 73, and his nurse wife, Dora, 62, along with the carcasses of their pets, into the back of the tragic couple's red Chevy pickup truck and took off on a grisly two-vehicle road trip.

The Faulkners were reported missing on the morning of New Year's Day after neighbors spotted their home near Oxford, N.C., engulfed in flames. Stover says that at 4:07 p.m. that day, two of his officers stopped a stolen white Chevy Suburban SUV on I-64 near Lewisburg. Another vehicle, a pickup truck, pulled off the side of the Interstate in front of the SUV, he adds.

Wounded

Eric Campbell had been driving the SUV, say police. As he talked with the cops who'd stopped him, lawmen say his father "produced a hand gun and started firing" at the two officers, who hadn't drawn their weapons.

The cops, along with another officer who arrived on the scene just as the gunfire erupted, took cover behind a police cruiser. They fired back at the shooter, wounding him in the leg.

Both drivers fled. Cops say the elder Campbell was wounded and quickly caught. His son was captured a short time later when the SUV flew over an Interstate guard rail, leaving Eric with a battered and bruised face, according to lawmen.

TRUE CRIME

When officers checked under a mattress in the bed of the pickup truck, cops discovered the Faulkners' bodies as well as their dead dogs.

Police Chief Stover says Lt. Jeromy Dove and patrolman Nicholas Sams needed hospital treatment after suffering shrapnel and bullet wounds during the gunfight.

Both officers "also took direct shots" to their chests, says Stover. But the lawmen were wearing bulletproof vests which, "saved them from more serious injuries, and maybe much worse than that."

Now, the Campbells are being held on charges including murder, burglary, robbery with a dangerous weapon, arson, cruelty to animals, larceny and identity theft in connection with the Faulkner tragedy.

charged with two counts of attempted murder on a police officer and two counts of malicious assault on a cop.

Tragically, the mayhem may have been prevented if the elder Campbell had been held on higher bail after being arrested for brutalizing his wife a few months earlier.

In September, he was busted in his Alvin, Texas, hometown for aggravated assault after his wife claimed he held her at gunpoint for several hours, pistol-whipped and punched her, then threatened to kill her. She also charges he wrapped a noose around her neck and called their kids into a room one by one so they could hug her. At the time, he told his wife it would be the last time she'd see their children.

"She was scared for her life and believed Edward Campbell was going to kill her," court papers charge.

After Campbell was busted, bail was set at just $75,000 despite the objections of prosecutors. The fiend made bail then failed to show up for a Dec. 18 court date. At that point, a warrant for his arrest was issued – and those who knew him lived in fear.

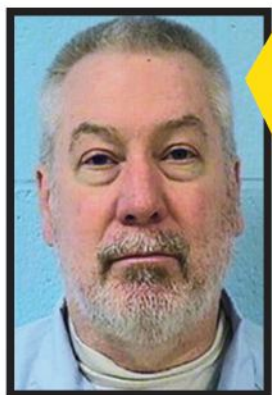

His Texas neighbor, Robert Bowyer, recalls the menacing brute telling him at their fence, "I'll kill you if our paths ever cross."

Meanwhile, detectives say the Campbells' attack on the Faulkners' modest home was a random crime of opportunity.

Still, the Faulkners' hometown is shaken by the horror.

Neighbor Ann Fiscus, who is taking care of the Faulkners' cats, says, "We have wept oceans, but as a community we have come together and will grow from this."

WIFE-KILLER DREW PUT JAILHOUSE HIT ON PROSECUTOR

— SHOCKING CHARGE

KILLER cop Drew Peterson is rotting in prison for killing his third wife. But that didn't stop the smug monster from trying to hire an assassin to murder the man who put him behind bars, charge authorities.

Soon after Peterson was sentenced in 2012 to 38 years in prison for the 2004 bathtub drowning of Kathleen Savio, Will County, Ill., prosecutor James Glasgow vowed to also nail the smirking beast for the October 2007 disappearance of his fourth wife, Stacy, 23.

Now, officials have charged 61-year-old Peterson with two felony counts of attempted murder for hire - with prosecutor Glasgow as the target. So far, lawmen have released few details.

Peterson was convicted in the bathtub death (below) of third wife Kathleen Savio

"For him to get caught trying to hire somebody in prison to kill someone is wild," says Stacy's sister, Cassandra Cales. "I've always said he's a serial killer with a badge."

Accusing the prosecutor of "perpetrating the largest railroad job ever" at his sentencing, Peterson, a retired Bolingbrook, Ill., police sergeant, stared Glasgow in the eye and sneered, "Never forget my face - never forget what you've done here."

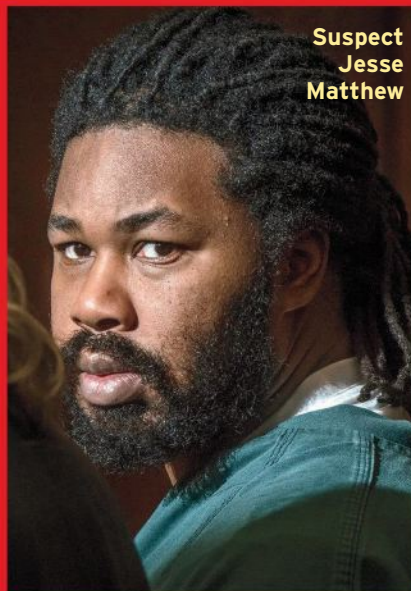

But in letters he penned to his former attorney, Joel Brodsky, Peterson wasn't so tough. He whined, "I feel I'm going to die in here. If the inmates don't get me, I'm gonna be killed by the cruel guards."

Already stuck behind bars until he's in his 90s, Peterson faces an additional 40 years on the murder-for-hire charge if convicted. He's been moved to a high-security unit at Menard Correctional Institute in Randolph County.

Rips former sister-in-law Cales, "He thinks he's above the law."

THE beast accused of the kidnap-murder of Virginia coed Hannah Graham will likely escape the death penalty!

After indicting suspect Jesse Matthew, 33, on first-degree murder charges, prosecutor Denise Lunsford vowed he'll be brought "to justice for these crimes committed against Hannah Graham, against her family and against the community."

But justice will not include a date with the executioner if Matthew is convicted in Hannah's case.

The maximum punishment for first-degree murder in Virginia is life imprisonment.

Lunsford did not explain why she did not seek the higher count of capital murder, which could result in the death penalty. Certainly, the details of the crime are grim.

In a mystery that chilled the nation, 18-year-old University of Virginia sophomore Hannah was caught on surveillance video walking unsteadily in downtown Charlottesville, Va., in the wee hours of Sept. 13, 2014. She texted pals with plans to meet up with them, then vanished.

VIRGINIA CREEP CHARGED IN HANNAH SLAYING

Hannah Graham's Sept. 13, 2014, disappearance shocked America

Another surveillance video shows a seemingly inebriated Hannah leaving a restaurant with Matthew, who has his arm around her. When cops closed in on the hulking 270-pound hospital orderly, he fled and was captured about a week later while sleeping on a beach in Galveston, Texas.

Hannah's skeletal remains were found a few weeks later about 10 miles outside of Charlottesville.

Meanwhile, DNA evidence linked Matthew to the 2009 murder of 20-year-old Virginia Tech beauty Morgan Harrington - and authorities believe he may be responsible for as many as 10 unsolved murders and rapes of college-aged women.

Sean's face is noticeably thinner

FRAIL SEAN CONNERY IS FADING FAST!

Friends fear legend won't last six months

Connery as Bond, James Bond, on the set of You Only Live Twice

Gaunt Sean is barely recognizable Feb. 4 at the Miami airport

JAMES BOND legend Sean Connery is bravely facing his last days, say sources. New photos show the beloved 007 star looking frail and barely recognizable. Heartbroken friends fear the 84-year-old star won't last another six months.

The 6-foot-2 Scottish actor was spotted Feb. 4 at Miami International Airport. Wearing a blue baseball cap, long-sleeved shirt and belted pants, Connery looked thin and gaunt and had bandages on the right side of his face.

"I was shocked. I barely recognized him," says an eyewitness. "I saw him arrive by car at Departures – he was taking a flight to the Bahamas – and I thought, 'That can't be him!' He looked frail and skinny. I saw him four years ago and he has changed a lot, more than you'd expect. He's lost a lot of weight and his face is much thinner. It's sad to see him like that."

Health issues

Connery and his 85-year-old second wife, Micheline Roquebrune, spend most of their time at their gated estate in the Bahamas.

There have been questions about his health for years, especially after he told a Marbella, Spain, court in 2010 he could not travel to testify in a corruption case, due to his age and health issues.

In August 2013, European papers speculated Connery was suffering from Alzheimer's disease after his actor friend, Sir Michael Caine, said the 007 star "is no longer the master of his senses."

A German paper reported Caine as saying, "Sean forgets his life," and that "one must have serious concerns for him."

But Caine quickly withdrew the remarks, insisting someone must have twisted his words. Connery's rep suggested Caine had been misquoted and denied her client was suffering from the mind-wasting disease, calling the report "silly and nonsense."

Still, Connery has a history of health woes.

He had radiation therapy in 1993 to remove benign tumors from his vocal cords after losing his voice while filming Rising Sun.

In February 2006, he had a benign kidney tumor removed in New York and two years later chipped a bone in his shoulder after falling while playing golf. In 2009, he revealed he'd been diagnosed with a heart condition and been warned to stop boozing by his doctors. "But I do drink red wine," he admitted, "because it's good for the health."

After starring in 2003's The League of Extraordinary Gentlemen, Connery basically retired and has only lent his recognizable Scottish brogue to a 2005 James Bond 007: From Russia with Love video game and two animated shorts about a Scottish vet, Sir Billi, in 2006 and 2012.

"Sean's no longer interested in acting," says another source. "He detests Hollywood moviemakers and health problems have finally caught up with him. We're looking at the sad last days of Sean Connery. I doubt that he'll last another six months."

"He's one of a kind. It will be heartbreaking to lose him."

AMERICA IS THE COUNTRY WHERE DREAMS COME TRUE

WHEN Lucy Liu was cast in the CBS crime drama Elementary as modern-day Sherlock Holmes' sidekick Dr. Joan Watson, fans flipped out because the famed detective's friend was a woman!

But three years later the backlash is forgotten. Now, Watson has transitioned from the super-sleuth's sober coach to a crime-solving partner for Holmes, played by English actor Jonny Lee Miller.

With the role, Liu, 46, has come a long way from her breakout TV series Ally McBeal and parts in high-profile movies including Charlie's Angels, Kung Fu Panda and Kill Bill.

In this interview with a freelance journalist, Liu talks about taking risks, being a tomboy and the American Dream.

Q: What is your secret to success?

A: I think you need to be willing to risk everything, and you have to take chances. I certainly did. I never tried to limit myself, and I was always willing to try something new. I am still doing that with my life today!

Q: What would have happened to you had you not taken risks?

A: I would still be working as a secretary or selling T-shirts on the street in Soho! My life has been a giant risk! I wouldn't have made it onto Ally McBeal...Charlie's Angels. We have to keep trying things. And sometimes they work and sometimes they don't.

Q: Is it true you never considered yourself beautiful?

A: That is true. When I grew up, I was a total tomboy. I had really short hair and was thin as a rail. No boy ever looked at me. It was only in college that I started to embrace my femininity. I am still totally flattered when somebody tells me that I am pretty. I just never grew up with that concept.

Q: How do you manage to stay in such good shape?

A: I find if I don't work out in the morning, by the time I get home I'm too tired. So, I generally try to get up early, meditate, do some (even if it's 20 minutes) training. In fact I bought a treadmill! Not a very attractive piece of furniture, but a necessity.

Q: Has Hollywood changed for women since you started?

A: Sure. I can remember after we did

Charlie's Angels - they wanted the three of us for a magazine cover. That had never been done before. A lot has changed in the past 14 years. I am proud that people call me a pioneer when it comes to girl power in my profession.

Q: Your parents are first generation Chinese. Are you proof the American Dream is still alive?

A: I'm incredibly proud of where I came from. My parents both came from China and I spoke with them in Chinese at the house. I do believe that America is still the country where dreams come true if you really believe in yourself, if you work hard and never give up.

Q: Do you have a philosophy you live by in life?

A: I studied Taoism in college. It teaches you not to have preconceived notions so you go in very open and very able to absorb without judgment. It's very difficult, but it is achievable.

Q: What were you like when you grew up?

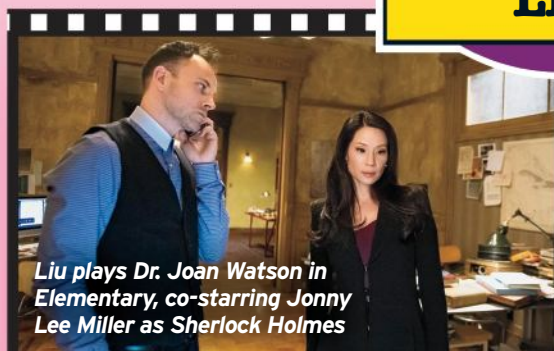

A: I'm the last of three children, and by the time I came along, it was, "Do whatever. Just get yourself to school." I was quite independent. There was no coddling, no handholding. My parents were working all the time.

Grey's Anatomy hunk Dempsey's passion for racing doomed his marriage to second wife Jillian Patrick Dempsey's SPEED nightmare!

DR. McDREAMY, Patrick Dempsey, is facing the nightmare of divorce for the second time!

And with no prenup, the estimated $40 million fortune of the Grey's Anatomy star is up for grabs.

Dempsey's 15-year marriage to wife Jillian crashed and burned in January amid claims that his obsession with auto racing kept him away from his family.

Sources are bracing for a bitter battle, fearing it could rival the all-out war of his first divorce. He was accused of physically assaulting his 26-years-old first wife, Rochelle "Rocky" Parker. However, Dempsey, 49, denies the shocking claim.

Meanwhile, Jillian cited irreconcilable differences as the cause of the new split. She is asking for spousal support, attorney's fees and joint custody of daughter Talula, 13, and 8-year-old twin sons Darby and Sullivan. She also wants jewelry.

"Patrick put his work and racing ahead of his wife and family," says a source. "And now he has to pay the price."

Sherri Shepherd's TEST-TUBE BABY WAR

SHERRI SHEPHERD has ditched her husband - and their baby boy!

The 47-year-old former co-host of The View and estranged husband Lamar Sally both filed divorce papers in May after less than three years of marriage.

Shepherd, who lost her TV job in June, claims Sally, 44, convinced her to have a child - with a surrogate - just so he could divorce her and sock her with enormous child support payments, says a source. She's worth an estimated $10 million. Now the mom of a 9-year-old special-needs son from a previous marriage has asked the court to void her parental rights to the new baby, conceived using Sally's sperm and another woman's egg.

Shepherd's shocking decision to have nothing to do with Lamar Jr., born Aug. 5, has left surrogate Jessica Bartholomew disgusted.

"I just don't understand how she can act like this baby is nonexistent," says Bartholomew. "It just blows my mind."

'Jekyll & Hyde' Hanks marriage SHATTERED!

TOM HANKS' 26-year marriage to Rita Wilson is on the brink of collapse, putting a $400 million fortune at stake, say sources.

The Forrest Gump star,
58, is known for his nice guy persona. But lurking behind his unassuming facade is a cold, controlling husband, add the sources.

Hanks' Jekyll and Hyde personality has apparently become too much for his long-suffering wife to handle.

"Their marriage is hanging by a thread right now," says an insider.

The two fell in love while filming the 1985 movie Volunteers. At the time, he was still married to his first wife, Samantha Lewes, the mother of his son Colin, 37, and daughter Elizabeth, 32.

During their nasty divorce, Lewes claimed Hanks "repeatedly verbally abused and humiliated me."

But now, insiders say Wilson, 58, is bearing the brunt of that same kind of "cold, controlling behavior."

With the marriage - which produced sons Chester, 24, and Truman, 19 - in tatters, Hanks faces a potentially brutal court battle over the couple's $400 million fortune. Amazingly, $380 million of the dough was earned by him.

"They don't have a prenup," notes the source. "It would be really interesting to see how that plays out in court."

Antonio Banderas and girlfriend Nicole Kempel are dealing with the wrath of ex Melanie Griffith (right)

Humiliated Mel making Banderas' life HELL!

SKIRT-CHASING Antonio Banderas is feeling the wrath of a woman scorned - and sources say wife Melanie Griffith will stop at nothing to get revenge. "The divorce is going to get down and dirty," says a friend of the couple. "Melanie's been deeply humiliated by Antonio's constant flirting and womanizing - but now she's ready to fight back."

Mel, 57, filed for divorce June 6 after 18 years of marriage, just days after photos surfaced of 54-year-old Banderas embracing sexy dinner date Nicole Kempel on the French Riviera.

The Working Girl wants sole custody of daughter Stella, 17, and $50 million, says an insider. She's also erasing Banderas from her life, concealing her heart-shaped "Antonio" tattoo. Says the insider, "Melanie doesn't want any trace of him left on her body or her mind."

Richard Gere and Carey Lowell split after 12 years of marriage

Neil Young's fishy bust-up

LEGENDARY musician Neil Young made a big splash when he called it quits with his wife of 37 years and quickly shackled up with washed-up Hollywood mermaid Daryl Hannah.

The shocking split caught many off guard as the 69-year-old icon and wife Pegi were thought to have had one of the entertainment world's most enduring marriages.

The couple was a loving team, caring for their son, Ben, 36, who is a quadriplegic, born with cerebral palsy. They also have a daughter, Amber, 30.

But the marriage crumbled and Young, worth an estimated $65 million, filed for divorce on July 29.

Just six weeks later, he was spotted cozying up with 54-year-old Splash siren Hannah. They reportedly bonded over a shared passion for environmental activism a couple of years ago.

DIVORCING a pretty woman is shaping up to be an ugly - and costly - affair for Richard Gere!

Former Bond Girl Carey Lowell, 54, is looking to take at least $100 million out of what she says is the 65-year-old An Officer and a Gentleman's $250 million fortune. Gere insists he isn't worth that much - and Lowell is being greedy! However, reports indicate the aging hunk earned a staggering

"They're not getting along and they're very far apart on how much money she'll get in their divorce," says a source.

Previously married to super-model Cindy Crawford, Gere and Law & Order beauty Lowell wed in 2002 after a long affair that saw the birth of their son, Homer, now age 15. But they've drifted apart and a source says, "It's turned very nasty."

*Stress doomed
Rosie O'Donnell and wife Michelle Rounds' union, says a friend*

Rosie booted by freaked-out wife

ROSIE O'DONNELL's marriage fell apart under the enormous stress of her short-lived return to The View - and friends fear it will turn into a nasty $100 million divorce!

After more than two years of marriage, Rosie's wife, Michelle Rounds, was terrified SHE was heading toward an emotional breakdown as a result of the superstar's whirlwind life - so she gave O'Donnell the boot, a friend tells GLOBE.

"Michelle had the best intentions going into this marriage, but it became more than she could handle," the friend says. "Things moved too fast for her. The pressure was crushing her."

The two wed in 2012, just days before Rounds, 43, had surgery to remove rare and deadly desmoid tumors. More drama followed when Rosie, 52, suffered a heart attack that August.

Then they adopted daughter Dakota in January 2013 when Rounds "was still trying to bond" with Rosie's four older children with first wife Kelli Carpenter, the friend adds.

Just as things were settling down, Rosie "couldn't resist" returning to The View last summer. "Michelle told Rosie it was going to upset the apple cart," the friend says. "But Rosie told her, 'I have to do this or I'll always regret it.'"

Rosie, who left The View last week, now finds herself without the coveted job AND her wife, leaving her devastated. "You'd like to believe this won't turn into a war," says the friend. "But most people didn't believe they would split up, either, so all bets are off."

Chris Rock custody WAR

Chris Rock and wife Malaak Compton don't see eye to eye over daughters Lola (left) and Zahra

COMIC Chris Rock is finding his pending divorce from Malaak Compton is no laughing matter. The funnyman claims Compton, 45, is stopping him from regularly seeing their daughters - Lola, 12, and Zahra, 10 - as punishment for slapping her with divorce papers in New Jersey.

And 50-year-old Rock's prenup expired during their 18-year marriage, putting his $70 million fortune at risk.

"The divorce has gone from quietly amicable to downright dirty," says a source.

It's the second time Rock has drawn up divorce papers. He did it first in 2006, but never filed them, a source says. "This was a long time coming," says another source. "Chris has known it wasn't salvageable for a while. He filed because he knew it was time to just move forward already."

Hollywood's DIRTY DOZEN DIVORCES

Mariah & Nick sniping over kids and ca$h

MARIAH CAREY is singing the blues because the stress from her split with America's Got Talent host Nick Cannon has put the skids on her once-booming career and turned her into a laughingstock on stage.

The six-year celebrity union screeched to a grinding halt in August amid accusations that Cannon, 34, was unfaithful.

"She has suspected Nick of cheating all along and intends to use it against him," reveals a source.

The parents of 3-year-old twins, son Moroccan and daughter Monroe, now find themselves embroiled in one of Hollywood's most costly divorces.

Although Cannon - who has already covered up a "Mariah" tattoo on his back - was worth just $500,000 when they wed in 2008, his fortune has grown to $20 million. But that's nothing compared to the 45-year-old songbird's estimated $535 million.

Says an insider, "They have a prenup, but all bets are off with two kids and all that money in play."

Mariah suspects Nick of cheating, say sources

Bruce's gender-bending has sparked a battle with ex wife Kris

Bruce & Kris Jenner: The truth is UGLY!

BRUCE and Kris Jenner may have just signed their divorce papers - but the split is turning ugly!

As the former Olympic hero continues his "journey" to become a woman, friends are defending him against charges he blindsided the Kardashian clan's "momager" with his shocking transformation.

Kris "walked in on Bruce wearing one of her dresses" soon after their quickie marriage in 1991, claims a source. "She secretly humiliated him over it for years."

When Bruce, 65, recently told Kris, 59, he planned to transition into a woman, "her main concern was how it could hurt the Kardashian empire," continues the source.

The pair split in June 2013 and their divorce was finalized in December after 23 years of marriage and daughters, Kendall, 19, and Kylie, 17. But there was trouble earlier in the relationship. Cougar Kris admitted cheating on her hubby, Robert Kardashian, who is now dead, with 10-years-younger soccer hunk Todd Waterman. She rekindled the romance in 2012 - while still married to Bruce, sources say.

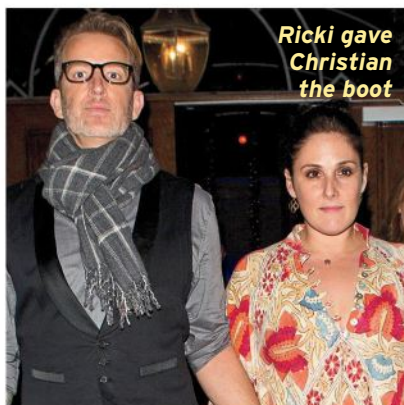

Now, Jenner, who was recently involved in a fatal car crash, is reaping revenge by cutting money-grubbing Kris out of his upcoming E! TV series that will chronicle his sexual transformation. Says a friend, "She won't see a dime."

Ricki Lake cheating heartbreak

RICKI LAKE was dealt a devastating blow when her jewelry designer husband, Christian Evans, demanded he be allowed to sleep with other women!

Shattered and heartbroken, the former talk star, who's reportedly worth an estimated $18 million, gave Evans the boot and headed for a divorce lawyer.

The two-year marriage exploded after Evans, 43, called

Ricki gave Christian the boot

Lake from the Spanish island of Ibiza on Sept. 21 - her 46th birthday - and demanded she agree to an "open marriage," says an insider.

"She was freaked out. Christian told her if she was not happy about it, then they should divorce."

Although there is said to be a prenup limiting Lake's liability to $150,000, a source notes, "That could change if Christian challenges their pact."

EATING RIGHT CAN SAVE YOUR SIGHT!

EATING carrots won't give you better eyesight, like your mom always told you – but Bugs Bunny's favorite vitamin-rich food can help prevent serious age-related vision problems.

"Studies have shown certain vitamins and minerals are crucial in preventing many eye conditions," says Florida ophthalmologist Dr. Ranya Habash. "We advise our patients to eat leafy, green vegetables as well as carrots which contain beta-carotene, stop smoking and wear sunglasses outdoors for additional ways to slow the progression or reduce the risk of developing macular degeneration."

Battle macular degeneration

The Age-Related Disease Study (AREDS) conducted by the National Eye Institute found a combination of beta-carotene (vitamin A), vitamin C, vitamin E, zinc and copper battles macular degeneration – the leading cause of vision loss in the U.S. "These supplements have been put into easy-to-use vitamin-mineral formulations to battle the disease," says Habash.

Look for brands with AREDS or AREDS 1 on the label, at your drug store.

A second study, AREDS 2, substituted the antioxidant lutein for beta-carotene after the latter appeared to have increased the risk of lung cancer among smokers. Current or former smokers should look for supplements that have AREDS 2 on the label.

Other foods and nutrients can protect your sight, too. Dry eyes can be remedied by upping the intake of omega-3 fatty acids found in cold water fish and in supplements," says Dr. Habash.

Symptoms of dry eye include blurriness when reading and a gritty feeling in the eyes. It's very common in women going through menopause and the No. 1 reason many people visit the eye doctor. He suggests 2,000 mgs a day in supplement form. You should take the pill with a meal that includes fatty foods like avocados, meat or chicken which helps the body better absorb and processes the omega-3.

New Jersey ophthalmologist Dr. Cary Silverman recommends patients recovering from photorefractive keratectomy (PRK) surgery take vitamin C, which decreases corneal haze.

Dr. Ellen Kamhi, author of The Natural Medicine Chest, adds that other antioxidants can also stave off eye disorders.

Update

Chubbies can take heart!

+EXTRA pounds are linked to heart attacks, but overweight patients are less likely to die after heart surgery, a new study reveals! Researchers discovered chubby patients are at a 25 percent lower risk of dying from surgery to clear clogged arteries than are normal weight ones. And underweight patients are 2.7 times more likely to have a heart attack or die following heart surgery, according to the study published in the journal Mayo Clinic Proceedings.

Drugs linked to dementia

+SENIOR citizens who take Xanax or other sedatives on a regular basis have a higher risk of dementia, researchers say. Patients often use sedatives for years, even though they're recommended for only short-term use to treat insomnia or anxiety. But a study finds taking benzodiazepines, which includes Valium and Ativan as well as Xanax, for more than three months boosts the odds of Alzheimer's by 51 percent, and doubled for longer than six months.

60 second sensation!

+GREAT news for couch potatoes – you can boost your health by doing just ONE minute of intense exercise! Researchers at McMasters University in Ontario had overweight volunteers work out for just 10 minutes with three 20-second bursts of high intensity exercise three times a week for six weeks. The participants' endurance jumped 12 percent and their blood pressures improved. The scientists say it proves that every little bit of exercise works, even just one minute!

YOUR HOROSCOPE

For the week of March 2 – March 8

by Emily Hamer-West

ARIES March 21 - April 20

Even though Venus in your sign has you more interested in the big picture, strive to concentrate on the details, especially on Wednesday. Looking at small ways to make life easier will pay off in the long run by freeing up time for the things - and people - you love. The waxing moon motivates a desire to get healthy. Cook meals at home!

TAURUS April 21 - May 21

It's a mistake to assume you know what someone is thinking. Forget your intuition - it's vital you communicate openly with your loved ones now. Live it up a little early in the week, enjoying a date night with your honey or a fun time with friends. Even if you have work to do, you need a break - and it will be easy to catch up later!

GEMINI May 22 - June 21

Mercury sparks your curiosity, encouraging you to start researching a subject that captures your attention - and it could lead you to a radical lifestyle change! But strive for balance and don't make too many changes all at once. Look to the past for a source of cash - perhaps an old investment account or you could find you're owed a refund!

CANCER June 22 - July 22

Lately, compassionate you has been spending plenty of time helping loved ones with their problems - but it's time to start caring for yourself, and the cosmos will give you the push you need. Try something new early in the week - it could lead to a fabulously fun new hobby! But say a big 'No' to a spending spree this weekend.

LEO July 23 - August 23

It's time to accept what you can't change, Leo! Step back and let go of the situation that's been keeping you on edge. Take time to clear away clutter at home. Once you feel organized physically, you'll feel ready emotionally for fresh opportunities. Look to a natural cure to ease a minor health complaint - an Aries has good advice.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDAY

turns 53 on March 2

VIRGO August 24 - September 22

Keeping the home fires burning could be tricky early in the week, when you get into a cranky mood. It's tempting to take it out on those you love most. Recharge your batteries by spending time alone, even a nap might help. Mercury visiting ambitious Aries gives your career a boost - expect an offer you won't want to refuse!

LIBRA September 23 - October 23

Make "steer clear" your mantra for the week - from being drawn into a conflict between neighbors or co-workers, to driving while tired, to falling for a scam pitched as a good deal! Staying home is a safer bet than zipping around town trying to get things done. Make plans over the weekend for a summer getaway with your partner or pals.

SCORPIO October 24 - November 22

Excitement is in the air when Venus waltzes with Pluto, linking new romance to travel. Are you ready to seize the moment? Getting your finances in order is easy Friday, with new ideas about earning, saving and spending. You've got so much get-up-and-go, it's hard to focus on just one thing, but the weekend brings a way to put that energy to good use.

SAGITTARIUS November 23 - December 21

It seems you never get any time alone with your partner lately, but a Saturn-Mercury alignment offers ways to strengthen your relationship. When shopping for the home, choose quality items that will last, even if they cost a bit more. You'll save dollars in the long term. A pal needs your shoulder to cry on this weekend.

CAPRICORN December 22 - January 20

Just when you think all is lost, you get the good news you hoped for! Communications with a loved one or friend could go awry - don't assume they don't care. It's likely they've been trying to contact you unsuccessfully. Postpone a decision about an important invitation. You could learn something that changes your mind.

AQUARIUS January 21 - February 18

Always the optimist, you'll see the bright side in a minor mishap that befalls you or a loved one and turn it into a chance to fulfill a wish! The planets inspire an idea that leads to a stable second income. It could be linked to a hobby or selling a product you truly believe in. Go your own way this weekend - absence makes the heart grow fonder!

PISCES February 19 - March 20

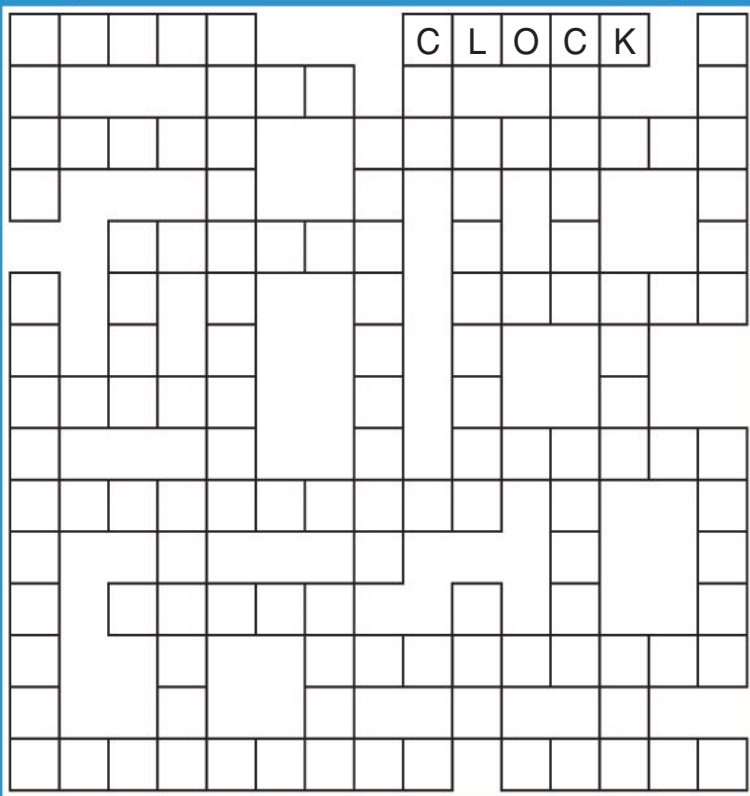

Even though paying the bills is never much fun, it's vital you sit down and look over your finances, because cosmic influences suggest there's something you've forgotten! But never fear, you'll easily solve this problem! Get together with family over the weekend, when you'll especially enjoy spending time with young children and teens.

BOBBI HOUSE

GLOBE WORLD EXCLUSIVE

THE SWANKY home where Whitney Houston's doomed daughter was found lying face down in a bathtub was a house of horrors where tragedy was just waiting to strike, sources reveal.

Bobbi Kristina, 21, lived life on the wild side, shackled up with her 25-year-old partner, Nick Gordon, who'd been raised by Whitney before her cocaine-related death in 2012. Bobbi Kristina partied with pals who loved drugs and flashing lethal weapons, say sources.

Disturbing images that have surfaced on the Internet include a photo of Whitney's only child, known as Krissi, with pal Mason Whitaker, 23, holding a hunting knife. Under the picture is the troubling caption: "We don't play."

Insiders say the Houston family was worried sick about Krissi. But the wild child, who claimed to have married Gordon, refused to listen to them, says a source.

"Krissi hung out with a bad crowd and it pulled her down physically and emotionally," says a family friend.

"She went into a downward spiral after her mother died and it couldn't be stopped. Drugs, booze and violence were an everyday part of her life.

"There were bad fights with Nick. He was angry because she was better known than him and had a bigger part on the family reality show.

"There were arguments about money, with Nick pushing her to get more out of the Houstons before she was due to receive her complete inheritance.

"Some of those domestic fights reportedly became physical and left Krissi in tears, crying for days."

On the morning of Jan. 31, Krissi was discovered underwater in the bathtub at her Roswell, Ga., townhouse by another close friend, Max Lomas, 24. She was rushed to the hospital where she was placed in a medically induced coma. She had been without oxygen for a number of minutes.

Even though Lomas has a recent felony drug distribution arrest on his rap sheet, cops say he is not a suspect in the case they're treating as a criminal investigation.

"They're looking into unexplained injuries on Krissi's face and Gordon's hands," says a report.

Targeted for death

The police probe includes reports Bobbi Kristina was spending upwards of $5,000 a week on deadly drugs, including heroin and crack.

Although a lawyer for her father, R&B singer Bobby Brown, denied she'd used heroin or crack, a source claims there's a secret vault-like chamber in the home where she kept her cash and drugs and Gordon kept his guns.

And as GLOBE reported last week, experts believe Houston's daughter was targeted for death by the same vicious drug dealers who killed her mother three years earlier.

Whitney, 48, died on Feb. 11, 2012, in eerily similar circumstances – found dead in the bathtub of her Beverly Hilton hotel bathroom.

Though her death was ruled an accidental drowning, she reportedly owed cocaine dealers $1.5 million when she met her shocking end.

The troubled heiress seems to have the weight of the world on her shoulders

Her demise “smacked of hit man revenge,” said a law enforcement source.

Meanwhile, Georgia detectives are checking local surveillance cameras, trying to determine if someone fled Krissi's home on the morning she was found.

It's not the first time cops have been called to the house. On the night of July 8, 2013, two Roswell officers went there to investigate a call about “unknown trouble.”

Cops were met by Gordon who told them Krissi “fell on the floor and became unresponsive,” says a police report that also reveals the young woman was “disorientated” and taken to the hospital by ambulance.

On Jan. 23, lawmen investigated reports of a fight at the townhouse, but when they arrived, no one was home. And four days later, Roswell police say Krissi lost control while driving her Jeep Liberty, crossed into oncoming traffic and hit another vehicle. Her passenger and the other car's driver were hospitalized.

As Krissi lay fighting for her life on a ventilator at Atlanta's Emory University Hospital, Bobby Brown's sister, Leolah Brown, said she believed “110 percent” that Gordon will be charged with a crime over the incident.

“I saw this coming,” she says. “I told her not to trust anyone.”

LUKE BRYAN ADOPTS ORPHANED NEPHEW!

Country star's sister and brother-in-law died years apart

COURAGEOUS country star Luke Bryan stepped up big-time during a family tragedy and took in his orphaned 13-year-old nephew!

Bryan's sister, Kelly, died unexpectedly at age 39 in 2007. And when her husband, Ben Lee Cheshire, 46, passed last November, their three teenaged kids were left without parents.

But Luke, 38, and his wife, Caroline, informally adopted the youngest, 13-year-old Til, who moved into their Nashville home.

"As a family, we shake our heads," says Luke. "I just have to chalk it up to, 'Well, this is God's plan.' You just have to plow on and play the hand that's dealt."

Til's older sisters, Jordan and Kris, who live in Georgia, visit regularly, and the family hopes that their example of solidarity helps others.

"We feel like if we just stay positive through this, maybe we'll be a positive inspiration for people that had these things happen to them," says the Play It Again singer, who has two young sons, Bo and Tate, with Caroline.

This isn't the first time Bryan has sacrificed for his family. In the mid-1990s, he was primed to move to Nashville when his older brother Chris died in a car accident.

Instead of heading off to Music City, Luke stayed home in Leesburg, Ga., to help his family cope with the tragedy. He attended college, worked on the family farm and played music in bars at night until his dad told him to pack his truck and get going to Nashville.

Luke and his wife, Caroline, have taken in 13-year-old Til

Within a few years, the singer/songwriter had his first hit single, All My Friends Say. And proud sister Kelly rounded up 129 people from their hometown to attend his Grand Ole Opry debut. Then, just days later, she was dead. No one ever figured out the cause, even after an autopsy. The cause of her husband's death is also a mystery.

"My only older siblings were gone from the world in a flash in two different, crazy, tragic manners that we'll never understand," Luke notes. "You can lean on friends and family, and you can get back life."

Presley's two jets, Hound Dog II (left) and Lisa Marie, have been put up for auction

HEARTBREAK HOTEL!

Livid Elvis fans fight to keep The King's old jets at Graceland

The music legend bought both aircraft two years before his tragic death

ELVIS PRESLEY fans are infuriated that two of The King's private planes now on display at Graceland are being auctioned off amid plans to relocate the downed aircraft!

In fact, the decision to sell the jets, Lisa Marie and Hound Dog II, has spawned a protest page on Facebook called Save the Planes.

"Please tell me that this is just a bad dream," one fan posted. Another added, "Let's fight together against this outrage!"

Presley owned the jets for just two years before his death. He spent more time aboard the Lisa Marie, which is custom outfitted with gold bathroom fixtures, four TVs and a 52-speaker sound system.

Both winged wonders went up for auction just after New Year's and the winning bids are due to be announced by early March.

Julien's Auctions president Darren Julien says they are "priced to sell," adding, "Whoever buys these planes is buying an instant museum or attraction. People will travel all over the world to see them."

But Elvis fan Stefaan Demarest, who lives in Belgium, is not happy about the prospects of the aircraft leaving Graceland.

"When you visit the planes, you step into Elvis' world," he says. "Removing them would be destroying a part of his world that we love."

MANSON CHEATS BODY SNATCHERS!

CHARLES MANSON's wannabe bride only wanted him for his body! She intended to display his corpse in a glass crypt after the maniac's death - and make a fortune selling tickets to see it!

Manson groupie Afton Elaine "Star" Burton (right) and pal Craig Hammond hatched a scheme to turn the twisted killer, now 80, into a tourist attraction much like Lenin's Tomb in Russia, reveals journalist Daniel Simone. He wrote a new book about the crazed cult leader.

But in the end, the joke was on the 26-year-old would-be bride! Simone says the evil mastermind never wanted to marry her - and believes he's immortal.

The wedding's off!

According to reports, Simone says, "Burton and Hammond initially wanted Manson to sign papers granting them ownership of his body, but the killer balked at the notion. So the two conceived the idea for Burton to marry Manson."

California law grants a spouse ownership of their mate's remains, say sources.

But Manson "finally realized he's been played for a fool," says Simone. "Manson never consented to the wedding in the first place and never will. He feels he'll never die, therefore, he feels it's a stupid idea to begin with."

As Twin Peaks returns...

DUCHOVNY WANTS HIS DRESS BACK

What a drag! David Duchovny (inset) went undercover as a transvestite the last time Twin Peaks aired TWIN PEAKS fans are overjoyed that Kyle MacLachlan is returning as Special Agent Dale Cooper in a sequel to the classic cult TV show – and that David Duchovny is expecting to get in touch with his feminine side again.

Duchovny, who played cross-dressing male DEA agent, Dennis/ Denise Bryson, says, “I hope my character comes back. I think she does.”

Agent Bryson started wearing women’s clothes in an undercover case playing a transvestite and realized he felt more comfortable that way.

MacLachlan will headline Showtime’s limited series 25 years after he last played Agent Cooper and will be joined by several other original cast members.

“I’m very excited to return to the strange and wonderful world of Twin Peaks,” says the 56-year-old star.

Gushes an overjoyed “Peaks” fan, “I am beyond thrilled. Twin Peaks started my love affair with the quirky and strange and made me realize that TV could be more than variety shows and soap operas.”

Kyle MacLachlan and Sheryl Lee: Back in the fold after 25 years

The nine-episode series will be a follow-up to the eerie 1990 to 1991 mystery drama and will be written by creators David Lynch and Mark Frost, with Lynch directing every episode.

The original, which was one of the top-rated shows of the 1990s, followed an investigation headed by Agent Cooper into the murder of homecoming queen Laura Palmer.

Sheryl Lee, who played Palmer and also her cousin, Maddy, will be back – presenting a challenge to writers since both her characters died! Dana Ashbrook returns as Bobby Briggs and Catherine E. Coulson will play The Log Lady again.

The cast also included Michael Ontkean (Sheriff Harry S. Truman), Madchen Amick (Shelly Johnson), Richard Beymer (Benjamin Horne) Lara Flynn Boyle (Donna Hayward), Peggy Lipton (Norma Jennings) and Piper Laurie (Catherine Martell).

Agent Cooper’s final Twin Peaks episode saw him becoming possessed by an evil spirit known as Bob and smashing his head into a mirror.

Filming is due to begin “at multiple locations” – likely including the series’ original Pacific Northwest home – during the summer. It is scheduled to air early next year, marking the 25th anniversary of the show’s finale.

Since “Peaks,” MacLachlan has appeared in Sex and the City, Desperate Housewives, How I Met Your Mother, The Good Wife and, more recently, Marvel’s Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.

NO MORE SOAP FOR GH BEAUTY

DAYTIME Emmy Award-winning actress, Kristen Alderson (left) has put her soap career on hold after 17 years.

"I've been in this amazing little soap bubble since I was 6 years old and now I'm 23," says Alderson, who plays Kiki Jerome on ABC's General Hospital. "I've never done anything else. I've never pushed myself.

"I never challenged myself to do other things in life, like taking a class for something other than acting, and getting back into singing, so that would be really exciting.

"Who knows where this road is going to take me. This has all happened very quickly, but I am prepared for the worst. I'm prepared for any failure."

Alderson started her career in 1998 as Starr Manning on One Life to Live, whom she played until the soap was axed in 2012.

Although she played Starr on General Hospital later that year, a lawsuit over rights to the character led to Alderson playing Kiki, instead.

STEENBURGEN NABS 'LAST MAN'

ACTRESS Mary Steenburgen (left) has landed a role in the new comedy Last Man on Earth.

The sitcom, premiering March 1 on FOX with an hour-long episode, centers on Phil Miller, believed to be the only man left on earth and played by Saturday Night Live funnyman Will Forte (right).

Steenburgen, 62, wife of CSI star Ted Danson, has an as-yet mystery role on the wacky comedy.

Mad Men's January Jones, Getting On's Mel Rodriguez and Neighbours' Cleopatra Coleman have also joined the show and may appear in scenes prior to the destruction of mankind by an untreatable virus.

Kristen Schaal, who had a recurring role on 30 Rock, is also featured and could turn out to be the only woman left on earth - unless that's Steenburgen's secret role!

"We don't spend that much time talking about what caused the apocalypse," Forte says. "There has been a virus, but we kind of avoid the subject."

RITA MORENO'S A 'VIRGIN' GRANNY

Glamorous Rita will spice up 'Jane,' starring Gina Rodriguez (right)

STAGE and screen legend Rita Moreno is guest starring on an upcoming episode of the popular new CW dramedy Jane the Virgin.

The 83-year-old actress, who starred in the movie classic West Side Story, will play Jane's (Gina Rodriguez) feisty paternal grandmother or "Glam-ma" as she likes to be called.

The veteran actress is one of a select group of performers who have won an Emmy, a Grammy, an Oscar and a Tony (aka EGOT).

In an acting career that spans six decades, Moreno has been in a number of other TV series including Oz, Nine to Five, B.L. Stryker, and Where on Earth Is Carmen Sandiego? More recently, she starred with Fran Drescher in Happily Divorced.

'Virgin' centers on a young religious woman, Jane, who's saving herself until marriage to her detective boyfriend and is shattered when a doctor mistakenly artificially inseminates her during a checkup.

DEADWOOD's Ian McShane cast in Ray Donovan... Comic Sandra Bernhard guesting on 2 Broke Girls...Rebecca Mader returning to Once Upon a Time...L.A. Law veteran Amanda Plummer to play villainess on The Blacklist... Sarah Jessica Parker stars in new

and week #4 winner – page 51

$100

Tell us why these pix DON'T exactly match and win...

There are three differences between these photos. If you spot them correctly - and your entry is the first chosen at random - GLOBE will send you $100. Simply identify the three differences between the photographs in a letter or postcard and send it to us at the address listed in the official rules on page 47.

GUESS WHO?

This frosty guy is no bird brain, but he is a little batty! Still stumped? Turn to Page 55

GLOBE WINNERS

RETIREED postal worker Susan Balla mailed in all the correct answers to GLOBE's Spot the Differences puzzle No. 4 and took delivery of the $250 grand prize.

The 68-year-old widow from Daisy Town, Pa., says she will use the winnings to treat her grandkids.

The five winners of $25 prizes each are: Marion Hite, Evansville, Ind.; Jennifer Bible, Davis, W.Va.; Bonnie Blaser, Spring Valley, Minn.; Marion Torrey, Bath, Maine; and Alicia Slusser, Snohomish, Wash.

STEVIE NICKS, 66, IS LUCKY TO BE ALIVE!

DON'T STOP was one of singer Stevie Nicks' biggest hits with the supergroup Fleetwood Mac. But the title also could have summed up her cocaine use!

A shocking new book about the rock songbird claims she spent $1 million a year on the drug and literally burnt a giant hole in her nose snorting coke!

"There was no way to get off the white stuff, and I didn't want to," says Nicks, now 66.

She wore a little diamond, turquoise and gold inlaid bottle, so she could have some cocaine with her at all times. The group even hired an opulent private train that once belonged to Adolf Hitler to travel through Europe so they wouldn't have to undergo too much scrutiny at borders.

And coke was just one of her indulgences. She also enjoyed Courvoisier cognac, Heineken beer and marijuana. She took so many drugs, she went weeks without sleep, author Zoe Howe reveals in Stevie Nicks: Visions, Dreams & Rumors.

The rock star seemed to have an equally insatiable appetite for her fellow musicians, carrying on a passionate affair with her married bandmate, Mick Fleetwood – while she was dating the Eagles drummer Don Henley. But she was even crazier about Henley's bandmate, guitarist Joe Walsh.

"There was no other man in the world for me," she says. "And it's the same today."

Walsh loved Nicks, too, but left her because he believed that if they stayed together, one of them would surely die from an overdose.

Nicks partied on and became addicted to cocaine, booze, Quaaludes and cigarettes, causing her to suffer nosebleeds, blackouts and near overdoses.

After a doc warned she was headed to an early grave, the band conducted an intervention. Nicks wound up at the Betty Ford Center. She beat her old addictions but got hooked on an anti-anxiety medication and barbiturates, which took her nine more years to kick.

"I believe there have been angels with me constantly," says Nicks, "or I wouldn't be alive."

THESE CELEBS ARE CLOSET NERDS!

OUR favorite celebs are known for cutting edge style, fabulous flair and stunning good looks. But a quick check of their educational pasts might make you think they belong in the pocket protector brigade!

For example, gorgeous Cindy Crawford studied chemical engineering at Northwestern University in Illinois before cashing in on what God gave her.

Ashton Kutcher

Cindy Crawford

Donald Sutherland

Before she even dreamed of being a Desperate Housewife, Teri Hatcher studied math at Se Anza College in California.

And the nerd list continues with Ashton Kutcher studying biochemical engineering. Donald Sutherland, the son of an engineer, followed in his dad's scholastic footsteps.

The Swedes, not to be outdone, lay claim to towering tough guy Dolph Lundgren. The actor, famed for his brutish role as Ivan Drago in Rocky IV, has a degree in chemical engineering from Stockholm's Royal Institute of Technology and a master's degree in the same subject from the University of Sydney in Australia.

JOAN RIVER

Going for a song - a black piano every bit as grand as the legend herself

Everything must go, including the tasteful furnishings and books in Joan's home office

Every antique anyone needs for an intimate dinner party

RS' PRIVATE PALACE!

Rivers loved to entertain at her apartment, which is decorated "the way Marie Antoinette would have done if she had the money."

Haunted Big Apple apartment on block for whopping $28M

JOAN RIVERS' palatial New York apartment is on the market for $28 million. The stunning pad comes complete with four bedrooms, a 23-foot-high sky-blue ceiling painted with clouds and doves - and a ghost!

With stunning views of Central Park and the Manhattan skyline, the place was said to be haunted by the pesky spirit of financier J.P. Morgan's niece, Louise Spencer!

On the 2009 episode of the reality show Celebrity Ghost Stories, Rivers revealed she'd hired a New Orleans voodoo priestess to evict the presence. "It was very strange," she said. "The apartment was cold. I could never get any of my electrical things to work correctly."

She said the ceremony apparently worked - and Joan then happily continued her decorating, which is pretty over the top.

"It's what Marie Antoinette would have done if she had money," quipped Rivers, who died at 81 in September following a botched throat procedure.

Fleeing L.A. following the suicide of husband Edgar and the cancellation of her talk show in 1987, Rivers found the 5,100-square-foot Upper East Side digs "a wreck."

A source close to Rivers says, "There were pigeons flying around. This was a true project of love. She took this apartment to another level."

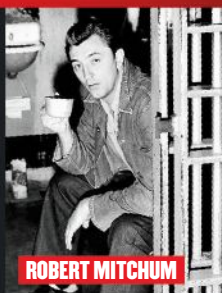

The comic queen's luxury 5,100-square-foot abode in New York's Upper East Side boasts four bedrooms, four baths and five fireplaces
